PRESERVING COLORADO WITH A BRUSH
Before the Fires... Before the Pine Beetles... Before the Concrete Skylines.

Don Sahli, American Painter trained in the Russian School of Painting, seeks to preserve Colorado's rich history and beauty. Through his paintings, Sahli has captured Colorado's breathtaking mountain peaks, awe-inspiring grand mesas, brilliant wildflower meadows, and quaint communities. From the quiet mountain peaks to the bustling streets, Sahli has painted a memory book of images that capture the heart and soul this national treasure – Colorado.

"Over the years many historical figures have appreciated the beauty of Colorado and fought to preserve it for future generations. "There can be nothing in the world more beautiful than the Yosemite, the groves of giant sequoias and redwoods, the Canyon of the Colorado, the Canyon of the Yellowstone, the Three Tetons; and our people should see to it that they are preserved for their children and their children's children forever, with their majestic beauty all unmarred." President Theodore Roosevelt 1905.

Colorado's landscape is forever changing as it fights a losing battle with nature – sadly this simply is beyond our control. Over the past decade Colorado's natural landscape has been radically altered – due to wildfires, pine beetles, and economic growth. The parks, historical landmarks, scenes, and communities are forever changing. But we can preserve the history and landscape of this great state. Don Sahli is working to do just that. In viewing his work, you see the beauty of this state.
